Attendance Policy: There is no required time to check in or login to Blackboard. I will not be requiring Zoom or Collaborate meetings for this course. I want you all to be able to work at your own pace according to your own schedules— “Asynchronous Learning” they now call it. We are all in interesting times for sure. This does not mean, however that there is no attendance policy. Students will be required to complete all coursework assigned in a timely manner. Failure to demonstrate work activity and/or check in with instructors after 3 weeks can result in the student being dropped from the class with an X. In addition, a student who falls into a dangerous area where the inevitable grade outcome would be an F may also be dropped from the course with an X after 3 weeks with no contact or demonstration of progress. Please try to keep on top of assignments; do your best not to fall behind. The current policy is not intended to be something for students to take advantage of, rather, it’s in place for your benefit. Be honest and please keep your instructors aware of any issues you may be having that may impede upon your ability to complete your work. We all want to help you succeed, but we need to know when you have issues. Please keep your professors informed!

*IMPORTANT: If you need to contact me for any reason, do so at the email address provided at the top of the syllabus. Please use your SPC email account for all SPC correspondences. Personal email accounts (Gmail, Yahoo, etc.) are often flagged by our system as spam, so I may never see them. I DO NOT use Blackboard’s direct messaging system. The phone numbers at the top of the email work, but I struck them out as they are the absolute worst way to reach me. I’m not near my office phone a great deal but I will get email! All I ask is that you give me time to see and read it. I will do my best to respond to you within a day. I generally checking my email one last time everyday around 9:00 pm, I’m hit and miss on the weekends.

Academic Honesty: The faculty is strongly committed to upholding standards of academic integrity. These standards, at the minimum, require that students never present the work of others as their own. Please make sure your thoughts on the discussions are your own. I’m interested in what you have to say. Please do not copy/paste the ideas of others into your discussion posts without giving proper credit.
